McIntire as a F-mile Academy. The building is very large and commodious. and before the School opens, the Principal in-tends so to divide the lot, and arrange the School Rooms, as to have the Male and Female

Desarting its entirely separated. He hopes in this way to secure all the advantages and avoid the evis that attend mixed schools. The Principal has secured the services of a highly accomplished Young Lady, Miss M. J. JARVIS, who will devote the whole of her time to giving instruction in the Female Department. He will also be assisted by his brother, S. McKEE, who will devote the afternoon of each one to giving instructions to both departments in Mathematics and Greek. The course of instruction will embrace the common English Branches usually taught In similar schools; also, Algebra, Gometry, Trigonometry, Theoretical and Practical Surveying, Latin and Greek, Cheristry, Natural, Moral and Mental Philosophy, Logis, Whetoric, Al x maer's Evi. ences of Christianity at .
